

Multiplicity distribution and the reflective scattering

Tuesday 22 July 2025 15:00 (40 minutes)

(OFFLINE)

Transition to the reflective scattering mode which has emerged at the highest LHC energy of $\sqrt{s} = 13$ TeV results in a relative shrinkage with the energy of the impact parameter region responsible for the inelastic hadron collisions. Respective increasing role of the multiplicity fluctuations of quantum origin is emphasized.

Primary author: TROSHIN, Sergey (NRC “Kurchatov institute”-IHEP, Protvino)

Presenter: TROSHIN, Sergey (NRC “Kurchatov institute”-IHEP, Protvino)

Session Classification: Afternoon session

Track Classification: Theoretical models of diffraction: Phenomenological models